Badge Overview

Explore, observe, design, and communicate your space science discoveries—just like scientists and engineers. When you've earned this badge, you'll understand more about space science and how you can be a part of NASA now and in the future.

Badge Components

1. Discover worlds beyond Earth

Do some research on the NASA website to find out about exoplanets.

- You can listen to a podcast here to find out What is an exoplanet and how do you find them?
- You can find out why these 7 scientists are looking for exoplanets here.

2. Dive into NASA science

- Explore the International Space Station, try to locate where all the scientific experiments are conducted.
- Watch this video to see some of the experiments conducted on the International Space Station.

3. Explore your interests

- Watch this short video on Faces of technology – Women of NASA 2020

4. Dig deeper

- Go to this website and find a career that you might be interested in by reading about these women in STEM at NASA.

5. Share what you've learned

- Use the 'Space Science Master – Brochure Template' to record what you have found out about space exploration, careers in space or the science in space exploration.
